

Chapter 25

Baldad endeuoreth againe to terrifie Iob, with Gods iudgement, from appealing therto, and from auouching his owne innocencie.

The eight conflict.

But Baldad the Suhite anfwering, fayd: <sup>2</sup> Power and terrour is with him, that maketh concord in his high ones. <sup>3</sup> Is there anie number of his fouldiars? and vpon whom shal not his light arife? <sup>4</sup> <sup>a)</sup> Can man be iuftified compared with God, or the borne of a woman appeare cleane? <sup>5</sup> Behold the moone alfo doth not fhine, and the ftarres are not cleane in his fight. <sup>6</sup> How much more man rottennes, & the fonne of man a worme?

<sup>a</sup> Iob anfwered before ch. 9. yet blind and obtinate difputers ftill repete the fame obiections.
