Psalme 146

God is alfo to be praifed by his peculiar people, for particular benefites, 4. & for his omnipotent powre, wifdom, goodnes, in creating, and gouerning this whole world, 11. and most fpecial benignitie towards those that truft in him.

Gods excellencie in creating and gouerning the vvorld. The 2. key.

Alleluia.

rayfe ye our Lord becaufe Pfalme ^a)is good: to our God let there be pleafant, and comelie praife.

² Our Lord building vp Ierufalem: ^b)wil gather together the difperfions of Ifrael.

 3 Who $^{\rm c)} healeth the contrite of hart: and bindeth vp their fores.$

 4 Who $^{\rm d)}$ numbere th the multitude of ftarres: and $^{\rm e)} {\rm geueth}$ names to them al.

 5 Great is our Lord, and great is his ft rength: and of his wifdom there is no $^{\rm f)} \rm number.$

^a It is good to fing Pfalmes of praife to God.

^b A prophecie of the reftaoration of Ierufalem after the captinitie.

^c Remitteth finnes to the penitent.

^d Befides experience of euerie one, that fhal behold the firmament in a clere night, the holie Scripture (Gen. 15. v. 5.) fheweth, that the ftarres are innumerable to man. For albeit Ptolomæy and other Aftronomers numbereth certaine more notorious ftarres, which ferue efpecially for fome knowlege in the fcience of Aftronomie, numbering 349. fuch in the Zodiach; 316. in the South part therof; and 360. on the North part, which are in al 1025. Yet al acknowlege that no man can come nere to anie probable conjecture of the whole number, nor is able to attaine anie perfect knovvlege of their natural influences, and fpecial proprieties. And therfore the Pfalmift propofeth here the admirable, and vnfearchable knovvlege of God: who both moft exactly knovveth the number,

^e and fo perfectly their nature, that his diuine Omnifcience geueth to euerie ftarre a proper name, according to their fingular differences and proprieties.

^f Thinges fubict to Gods knowlege and wifdom are innumerable.

⁶ Our Lord receiving the meeke: & humbling finners even to the ground.

⁷ Sing ye to our Lord in confeffion: fing ye to our God on harpe.

⁸ Who ^a)couereth the heauen with cloudes: and prepareth rayne for the earth.

Who bringeth forth graffe in the mountaines: and herbe for the feruice of men.

 9 Who geneth to be aftes their foode: and to $^{\rm b)} the young rauens that cal vpon him.$

¹⁰ He shal not have pleafure in the ftrength of an horfe: nor in the legges of a man shal he be wel pleafed.

¹¹ Our Lord is well pleafed toward them that feare him: and in them, that hope vpon his mercie.

^a Al thefe and the like benefites do fhevy Gods incomparable greatnes, vvifdom, and goodnes.

^b Both facred and prophane auctors teftifie, that rauens feing their yong ones, either vvithout fethers, or to have vvhitifh, vnlike to theirs, as fufpecting that they are not their ovvne birdes, but of fome other kinde, leaue them deftitute of meate; therfore God the auctor of nature, and conferuer of al kindes of creatures, by his fpecial prouidence, feedeth them: either by a certaine dew, hanging neere them in the ayre, as Ifidorus fuppofeth; or by litle beaftes, or flees, fent by Gods prouidence, which they catching into their mouthes, are nourifhed and brought vp, as S. Chryfoftom teacheth, fer. in Heliam; or by vyhat other meanes foeuer, al agree that yong rauens are neglected by their parents, and are fedde merueloufly by Gods ordinance; by vvhich example the Pfalmift fhevveth, that much more God hath care of men: efpecially of fuch men (faith S. Chryfoftom) as honour him vvith hymnes and praifes, vyhom alfo he hath called to be his peculiar people, and his ovvne portion or inheritance.

Ho. in hunc Pfalm.
